

GPs continue in breach of their contracts, five years on Their illegal NHS charges will now have to be declared

NHS GPs in England have been prohibited from using 084 telephone numbers for contact from patients since changes to their contracts came into force on 1 April 2010. Those already using them were given twelve months in which to change their number - a facility freely permitted within the terms of their arrangements with their telephone system providers.

Many GPs chose to continue using these numbers, in breach of the terms of their NHS contract, until contributions from patients had been fully used to pay off the cost of their telephone system. (This is why the numbers had been adopted in the first place.)

According to information provided to NHS Choices by the GPs themselves, through their "Clinical Commissioning Groups", there are still 183 surgeries using 084 numbers today - listed below. (Some practices do not publish their 084 number on NHS Choices, so there are even more cases.)

New rules from 1 July

Under the terms of the new "Clear Call Rates for Everyone" regulations, which come into force on 1 July 2015, the rate of charge to the benefit of every organisation receiving calls on a 084 number will have to be declared wherever the number is published. (See the details at ukcalling.info).

Unless these practices switch their telephone number in the next two months - which they should have done five years ago - they will have to declare to their patients the illegal NHS charge that has long been hidden within impenetrable telephone tariff sheets.

Our comments

It is a disgrace that NHS GPs, not to mention many hospitals and other providers, ever came to be using 084 numbers in the current telephone market. This is the worst case of a much wider abuse.

It was an appalling error by the then Health Minister to permit use of 084 numbers by GPs in 2005.

After the revisions to the GP contracts (and directions to NHS bodies) were put in place in 2009, it is very disturbing that, despite some strong language, absolutely no effective enforcement action has been taken to rid the NHS of this nasty attack on its fundamental principles.

Payments by patients as they access publicly-funded health services could help address a financial crisis, but would amount to abolition of the NHS. Those who hold this view must declare it to the owners of the NHS - the people of the UK. It is unacceptable to quietly allow continuation of a co-funding arrangement such as this, as it lacks the regulation by parliament and exemptions based on level of need and ability to pay, which cover all properly applied NHS charges.

Further detail

We will be happy to provide any further comment and information on the points covered above. Our website includes a chronology of the recent actions, with links to relevant documents.

List of 183 surgeries

The following list of surgeries and numbers is taken directly from NHS Choices in a file reflecting what is published in its main database. The data is all provided by the relevant GP-led "Clinical Commissioning Group", the 'parent body' of the practice, within the NHS.

The applicable "Service Charge" rate for each number, as pence per minute, is taken from a table published by Ofcom.
